	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
Yes	Gd aims, but how is it actually going to be carried out, eg details?
Yes	"Optimise the subsidies WCC funds" - if you intend t cut the overall amount, you should say so.
Yes	"Protect and enhance our assets in order to maximise income possibilities" City centre car parks in Winchester (which should have been closed under previous development agreements) would generate far better returns if subject to business rates and the knock on investment in the local economy. Invest in roof building solar power which will save money and help hit renewable energy/climate/air
Yes	with a but. As a property tax the council tax is woefully inadequate, especially since the valuations and bands have never been updated. The Council should work with other local authorities to propose a better scheme which is open ended and based upon simple percentages of valuations so 1. The introduction of the term "entrepreneurial" to the delivery of public services and management of public finances needs some further explanation if it is not to be seen as window dressing. It is not clear to me how the behaviour of the Council is meant to change or how any additional risk associated with such an innovative approach is to be managed.
Yes	2. The intention to promote digital infrastructure is laudable but it is not clear where this is to be applied; some clarification needed, I think.
	3. As a starting point for "investment" in a collaborative and flexible working environment, you may wish to consider identifying for Council officers and the Public the relative priorities attached to the 5
Yes	Again, climate change needs to figure here, the City Council should invest Council money in renewable energy to run its buildings but also for the community and commercial schemes.
Yes	And why not invest in alternative energy technologies, in which this area could easily become a
Yes	Another aim: Make council officers reach a level of efficiency and knowledge at the same level as commercial organisations. The council needs to become more efficient in its operations and decision making to avoid situations like Silver Hill and Station Approach, where they have looked very amateur.
Yes	Any chance that
Yes	As far as these go they are sound, but they are not compelling - the pressure to fill the coffers may add risk that governance changes may fail to address.
Yes	Broadly agree with goals (not outcomes) Will the above be transparent to the public? E.g. General Fund performance and income streams?
Yes	Bus Station condition awaiting the Silver Hill project is a disgrace. What a greeting to a historical
Yes	But to gain, and retain, credibilty you will have to stop making such a repetitive mess of planning developments like Silver Hill and the station approach.
Yes	But you need to address issues if workforce inefficiency, 2 people to do 1 persons job. Waste in this council is huge, everywhere and obvious to open eyes every day.you need workers not managers,
Yes	Can we do more about the environment, renewable energy, waste and pollution? Social care too
Yes	City council should focus on core role and not do things that other public and private sector already do better or more efficiently.
Yes	Conscious that it is difficult for small local authorities to manage large entrepreneurial projects, it will show honesty, not weakness, to collaborate with other local authorities, particularly larger ones like
Yes	Council seems to lack a check or accountability on day to day running it's work force. Sloppy attitude by some of its workforce. If they don't want the job however mundane "move on".
Yes	Digital infrastructure is key. Please be a leader in this. You (and we) will all reap the benefits.
Yes	encourage collaboration
	Environment management is key for supporting lives at all levels.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment Every time you introduce a change to public services or how they are delivered to save money, see if there is an opportunity to make it even better at the same time.
Yes
	And don't be afraid to outsource but get some top contract negotiators on your side - sometimes (not referring to Winchester) see inexperienced people negotiating contracts on behalf of public Fine to run efficiently and on a more commercial basis - but make sure you get your PR message
Yes	across otherwise your electorate will start to distrust your motives with public funds.
Yes	Fine words but I do not see much evidene Yes	Flexible working for council workers is probably the best way to keep them motivated given the Generally yes if Public Service is at the heart of this.
	Would be good to have a new point about using 'invest to save' with renewable energy projects and making public and private buildings more efficient.
Yes	making public and private buildings more efficient.
	Not sure how much leeway you have for more flexible working considering the few staff you have.
	The sure new much leeway you have for more nexible working considering the few stall you have.
	Wall being of staff should be at the beart of an officient convice Well-being of staff should be at the heart of an efficient service.
	Get some people in, who can properly mastermind development of the currently-blighted Silver Hill
V	area, also the Station area (if this is really justified) in such a way that the needs and aspirations
Yes	(culturally and in other areas) of local people can be met. We don't need more shops in central Winchester, though a covered market, a cinema and a theatre or meeting hall would be welcome.
	We don't need all the flats that were mooted for Silver Hill either - unless they are all to be for lower
Yes	Given the Silver Hill fiasco I think that more of Winchester's procurement team need basic Yes	Good if council can break free from traditional restrictive mindset & protocols to a more flexible approach BUT where is the governance and who decides what is viable and who is accountable if a Yes	Great words, but carry no weight if not implemented correctly.
Yes	Hard to challenge the objectives. Delivery may be more of an issue.
	However I am concerned that the potential future income stream funders to the Council would appear to be being dictated to rather than being intelligently considered . I do not believe that you can achieve the most practical outcomes to situations demanding the involvement of the income Yes	generators without intelligently considering their needs and intelligent suggestions. Perhaps bringing them more on board may help. Why not try it in a particular area of commerce/business to establish the best way forward and then perhaps enlarge the scope of your efforts in order to achieve the best possible outcome for you all? Losing the support of these people is not the best possible Yes	However it feels a bit like you have simply thrown the point about flexible working environment in res	here as you had no other suitable home for what, I assume, will be a significant capital scheme.
Yes	However you could consider building relationships with suppliers and customers over the longer
res	term rather than what appears to be shorter term financial aspects However, the Government also needs to be made aware of the impact its funding decisions have had on local authorities and therefore on local communities and people.
Yes
	A more entrepreneurial approach from Local Authorities should also still be carried out with due regard to fairness and social justice, as well as economic and other aspects of sustainability.
	I agree but need to make sure we maintain the focus on why we are doing this. It is not the end in Yes	itself, it is only a means to generating the income to enable the council to provide services to it's constituents. If it starts to feel like the profit generation is becoming the reason, then it has gone too I agree wit this somewhat. I find the workings of the Public Service in Winchester to be lacking in Yes	transparency in how the operate, so it make commenting on this difficult. Having worked in public
103	service myself, I am also concerned that the measures read a little like staff will be asked to do I agree with the Council's objectives here, but would urge that due consideration is taken in ensuring that the governance structure keeps a 'human face' and that the process does not obscure the
Yes

	Do you pareo with the Dublic Convigor systems? Do you have now other convert
	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
Yes	I agree with this provided it is activated there are so many ideas that come out from the council offices that are not implemented. Firstly the council need to stop the brain drain and remove those that are sitting on their laurels waiting for retirement . There is a lot of dead wood that really does need clearing, in the real world they would not be tolerated this includes heads of departments in I believe plans should focus on long-term sustainable sources of income for the council. Too often
Yes	you see councils relying on the disposal of particular assets as the solution to financial difficulties but often this leads to non-recurrent solutions to recurrent problems.
Vaa	I definitely agree the council should use a strategic asset purchase scheme to generate financial
Yes	returns - this should provide a long term revenue stream
Yes	I do agree, but this description hardly meets the criteria for Plain English.
Vee	I do have reservations although I appreciate the need for replacing government funds.
Yes	The needs of the vulnerable must not be neglected in this drive for efficiency
	I support community-led plans across the District, of which there are now 26 completed and a further 7 under development. One of the issues that appears in many of the plans is slow Yes	broadband, something that is of great concern in many of the smaller rural communities. It will be difficult for many residents to effectively access Council services through new technologies without an improvement in broadband provision, so I would encourage explicit mention of this in the Yes	I think its also about having the right staff - not just inspirational staff I ticked Yes, but with reservations. What is the 'right' governance structure? is it about ensuring the Yes	City Council remains at all costs, or are you serious about unitary government?
	I would also add that the council needs to be more flexible - and encourage innovation, a greater Yes	focus on outcomes and be less tied to processes.
	I would also like to see the council investing in its own staff by providing a healthy environment and encouraging behaviour change in staff wishing to improve their health through supportive Vee	programmes at work, such as physical activity, healthy eating, yoga and relaxation to tackle stress
Yes	along with other measures.
	Assets including any council investment should be directed towards renewable energy which would be entrepreneurial by both saving and making money as well as helping to hit targets. This includes N	I would like the Council to be entrepreneurial by investing in renewable energy, which will bring in Yes	funds for the foreseeable future while improving the environment and helping towards decarbonisation. This applies to Council property and to supporting community and commercial Yes	I would like to see attention paid to green energy sources and the possibility of such energy sources becoming a fund raising service. It can be done if the Council has the will to investigate and In implementing this strategy you are right to look at technology opportunities but must consider that Yes	the most needing of your services are also the least likely to be able to access these channels. The council should not be afraid to copy with pride the solutions implemented by others.
	Increasing trans generational digital communication infrastructure & education should be of priority
Yes	Invest in cleaning up rubbish. This is awful in parts of the city and gives a bad impression to tourists.
Yes	Invest in renewable energy (see the Swindon solar farms example mentioned earlier - and also 100	rooftop solar on Council-owned houses and buildings)
Yes	Invest in renewable energy projects across the district 165
Vee	Investing Council money in renewable energy would be entrepreneurial, save money, make money, Yes	and help hit the targets. This includes your own buildings, and also investing in community and Investing WCC money in renewable energy would be entrepreneurial, save and make money and Yes	help hit targets. This includes Council buildings, and also investing in commercial and community \	Investment in the area of renewable energy could support the aims above, also in supply of office
Yes	space for start-up and knowledge based industries

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? Do you have any other comment
	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment strategy. Supportive, progressive and above all transparent governance that inspires creativity by staff is also crucial alongside processes that ensure probity and prevent the drift from the overall aim of doing 'social good'.
Vaa
Yes	It is also vital that we strengthen the move towards investing in renewable energy by making it a gold standard in all that the council does and promotes. This will provide significant benefits over time both to our local economy and to the health and well-being of local residents.
	time both to but local coolionly and to the health and well-being of local residents.
	It needs to be clearer what you mean by 'entrepenurial way.' Yes we need digital infrastructure.
	This infrastructure needs to be low carbon and green, however. This is good/ big business. This will save money and help hit targets.
	Additionally, on the prevent we need to been an even on the extual multiple emission delivered Additionally, on the ground we need to keep an eye on the actual public services delivered, Yes	especially for the elderly and disabled.
	Please protect buses and access to medical services for elderly and disabled people. My Mother can't get to the GP easily: she's 80 and disabled. She can't park outside St Clement's surgery as these bays are now for taxis It's a long way for her to walk from the designated car parks.
	It's hard to comment without seeing the detail of how this will be done, but local authorities are no
Yes	doubt being forced into making wholesale changes to how they generate funding and sustain services. It would be good to see WCC approach achieving these objectives in a transparent and Yes	Lead the way and make Winchester one of the greenest cities in the UK!
Yes	Make IT portal more effective enabling residents and others to more readily access your serv ices.
	Make sure you have someone that knows about business organising the quotes for doing the work.
	Many residents are suspicious of council after the recent high court judgment and that secrecy that Yes	surrounds a lot of decision making.
	More openness and collaborative engagement with the tax payers is essential in order to create an
Yes	Maximising income may not be compatible with a sustainable and environmentally friendly city
	No
Yes	No detail of how such maximisation of income will be generated and at whose expense. Higher
	Not clear how these actions achieve intended outcome.
	Not if it means reducing the housing benefits to the already squeezed poor of the area and charging Yes	the motorist more money to park or by raising business rates so that we have a high street totally Not totally sure though what all this means.
	On the whole I agree.
Yes	But please please please don't use companies such as PWC, they will rob the council blind and deliver nothing but smoke and mirrors.
	Please include a commitment to supporting social and community enterprises.
Yes	Commitment to the renewable energy sector would help with jobs, meeting targets and saving money. Please detail this in the plan.
	Please take steps to control the mess that Winchester becomes during the Xmas period - it also Yes	becomes a no-go zone for residents - we have reached saturation point and though I know that this
103	is in many ways good for the local economy, the expansion now needs to stop
Yes	Pleased to see the note on inspiration of staff as this is key.
100	Provisowhat is the detail behind this? For example it makes be extremely nervous when you say
Voc	you will maximize key income streams. Well Council tax is a key income stream and we already pay
Yes
Vaa	over £2500 per yearon top of all the other tax regimes and our disposable income is eroding or
Yes	Self sufficiency will sadly be necessary. This is good provided essential services can be maintained
Yes	Some services are not appropriate for a 'market place' focus so I'm cautious about how you will achieve the above outcomes.
Yes	Sounds rather vague, but yes thinking of innovative ideas to improve funding is a good idea.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
	Streamline the governance structure at WCC level, but engage proactively with representatives
Yes	from parishes and wards to ensure good citizen representation.
	Seek to obtain better commercial rents (Basingstoke BC seems to have got this right).
Yes	The Council does not have the expertise to create a property company. Leave it to the private
Yes	The council needs to invest in renewable energy which has many financial benefits also for council 103	offices as well as investing in renewable energy for other community and commercial projects.
	The Council should campaign against the withdrawl of goverment funding What does 'optimise the subsidies WCC funds' mean? Is this double speak for rationalisation and Yes	funding cuts?
165 'Inspire staff' Sounds like the present leadership is unable to motivate your people to deliver the current VMOST (Vision Mission Objectives Strtaegy and Tactics)
	The council still works in an old fashioned silo based way. Other councils are being much more Yes	forward thinking in redesigning their operating model and realising massive savings.
	There is much more you can do.
Yes	The Local Authority needs to ween itself off the cash from parking. The city council needs to support 103	a vibrant, sustainable, clean city by focussing on public services which support wellbeing and
	The word 'entrepreneurial' worries me! What does it really mean? More managers, more meetings, more talk and nothing much getting done. Just get staff and councillors to get on with Yes	their jobs! All talk and no work just doesn't do it. Entrepreneurial just smacks of political 103	correctness and any good ideas/plans getting bogged down in PC speak - that won't inspire staff.
	The majority of the items above you should be doing anyway! For goodness sake don't employ straight from college/uni young people with MBA's etc but no experience. A good education and Yes	There has to be protection for those residents who cannot access services through technology. By 100	all means do this for the majority but build in safeguards to protect the minority - usually the poor
Yes	There needs to be an injection of younger people conversant with the latest technologies and 100	developments to shape and develop the council.
	Therefore, we need to encourage the fastest internet services possible within Winchester. The Yes	current offering by BT is totally unacceptable. Running a business in Winchester, is so frustrating with the appalling internet speeds available. Winchester needs Hyperoptic!
Yes	This area is very dependent on how it is actually done. You will certainly antagonize some vested
Yes	This is what a modern public service provider must do in order to thrive and survive in the current
Yes	This seems a good strategy, but it needs well-judged decision-making to avoid costly mistakes.
Yes	to be be "self-sufficient from our own sources" should also literately include investment in renewable
Yes	Totally agree, but I don't see anything about collaborating with local businesses to both help drive this harder and faster and ensure that it fits in with their needs, so that they continue to invest in the
Yes	Totals
	Use empty shops to run council businesses to bring in funds Sell off or rent out closed council properties Make more use of council run properties by maximising opening times and multi using them including doctors surgeries, parish or community centres.
Yes	Some of these could be combined .
	If GP surgeries were 24 hours you would only need HALF of them . The other half could be sold off or used for other purposes .
	The MAYORS house, very nice but is it used to it's full potential?
	The GUILDHALL , is this fully used all the time ?

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment Value the staff for their knowledge and loyalty. Not everything can be measured by outcomes, and currently what can't be measured doesn't seem to be valued.
Yes
100	You will need to educate clients about the new way of thinking, as many clients still think "the council" will sort out everything, and many don't know the difference between WCC and HCC.
	We also need to place some of the above investment in Renewable energy. It is a win - win Vac	situation as the energy sources will only become cheaper as those relying on fossil fuels will
Yes	become more expensive. Not only that but more importantly - THIS WILL REDUCE CARBON EMISSIONS and make it more likely that we will achieve the target of 40% cuts by 2020. I am pleased that WCC has this target. Community and commercial renewable energy schemes may We are now in an age of shared services which make sense. Also residents need to self service.
Yes	However some deprived communities and older people don't have access to technology so a mix of options in the shirt to medium term will be needed?
	Well done at saving money on energy bills from all the steps already taken in Council buildings.
Yes	Now, invest Council money in renewable energy, which would be entrepreneurial, save money, 165 make money, and help hit the targets. This includes both renewable energy for / on your own buildings, and investing in community and commercial schemes.
Yes	What about investing in renewable energy schemes on Council property? This would deliver a return as well as increasing renewable energy generation in the district.
Yes	What is a strategic asset purchase scheme?
	While local authorities will continue to operate in a very difficult financial environment with declining central government funding, it is right to look for alternative forms of income, including from property assets which could be developed for a greater return. But it is important that it has access to the right skills and experience to provide commercially successful projects.
Yes	The Council along with neighbouring authorities ought to be more committed to exploring mergers as suggested by the HCC consultation last year which showed that almost any combination would produce significant financial savings.
	Given WCC's proximity to HCC offices, there should be savings to be had by sharing some of the administrative functions and possibly others as well. Would there not be gains to be had in making Why not invest into green technology and Yes	Community based green technology
res	This would create returns Example: Micro Hydro Power stations along the Itchen Winchester is terrible at online digital services.
	I had to report a missed bin collection last week. Despite having logged in already I still had to provide my address twice and other basic details that you already know about. A missed bin V	collection should be a one-button press once logged in. You know where I live - you know my Yes	normal bin collection day - you know my name!! Dont ask for stuff 2-3 times that you already know.
	I then get an email saying my request has been 'refferred' - this is council speak and means nothing to me! stations along the Itchen and other rivers (using the natural and already existing artificial water gradient) and other forms of renewable energy to provide renewable energy and create an income.
Vaa
Yes	The council should increase parking charges and consider congestion charges to create more income and reduce pollution.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment Vaa	With the caveat that entrepreneurship means taking risks and being ready to fail. More new
Yes	enterprises fail than succeed, so the successes must deal with the costs of the inevitable failures
Yes	Wonderful. If it works.
Yes	Would have helped if this was in plain English and severely lacking in detail.
Yes	Wow - if you can get local authority mind-sets to change to entrepreneurial ones you will have
.00	You could add top your potential revenue streams, greatly increasing the parking charge within the Yes	central area, reviewing that charge on an annual basis rather than every decade. This to include residents parking for which your charges are absurdly low.
Yes	You definitely need to change how you work as a Council, agreed!
100	You make no comment about environmental issues or green targets.
Yes	Public services need to based around cutting pollution and greenhouse gas emissions.
100	We need green waste and transport policies for example You seem to be completely overlooking the potential for local energy generation as a means of Yes	generating income and reducing our carbon footprint.
	You should invest Council money in renewable energy, which would be entrepreneurial, save money, make money, and help hit the targets. This includes Council buildings, and also investing in Yes	Your plan for achieving this is full of great mission statements but very weak on actual practical
Yes
A	plans of what you are going to do. This is a recurring theme in this consultation.
	Answer has to be 'probably'. Not possible to judge without more detail, which I appreciate can't yet Not	Council money should be invested in schemes to produce renewable energy from solar power in all their properties. This would save money and reduce carbon footprints. Investments should also be made in Community and commercial schemes for renewable energy production.
Not	Dont really understand what all this means.
Answ ered
Not	Ensure that there is a better selection of retail outlets as Winchester is a bad shopping centre at the moment and has been deteriorating for some time.
ered
	If Delivering an Entrepreneurial approach to efficient public services is the "Public Services outcome", I imagine most people would think this was a very risky strategy for WCC, following recent performance, eg Silverhill. Again there is little or no detail of how the list of aims will be funded, delivered or measured.
Not	The key to a successful truly entrepreneurial approach is the aptitude, ability and experience of staff not the "right governance structure". However, creating a governance structure that is flexible, ered	adaptable and more commercially aware whilst still responsive to the needs of the local population would help respond positively to the many changes and challenges in the future.
	The aim to "Inspire staff by investing in a collaborative and flexible working environment that leads to the delivery of high quality services" suggests this is not already the norm at WCC.
	WCC should concentrate on effectiveness and not efficiency and only when it demonstrates it can Not	In plain EnglishWhat does this mean ?
Answ
ered
	Need further explanation of the working of the property company in order to gain General Fund
	No comment
	Not sure about this one. I can see the disadvantaged (elderly, chronic sick, disabled, unemployed) being left behind as funding is squeezed ever tighter. I am particularly concerned about social care ered	in the community.
	Not sure. Optimising (selectively reducing?) the subsidies that WCC funds will obviously have to Not	be done sensitively. Services affecting the vulnerable have already been cut a lot.
Answ	One enterprise that is well worth exploring is the generation of renewable energy. I speak as the ered	owner of some solar generation myself. Also, I feel strongly that it is not good enough to use energy while not taking some responsibilty for generating it.

 Not The Council should invest money in renewable energy, which would be entrepreneurial, save Answ money, make money, and help hit the targets. This includes your own buildings, and also invest in ered community and commercial schemes. Again, WCC must lead by example. Well all that above that you've written there doesn't really say anything does it? How about you go "entrepreneurial" and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits: creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions. If ind it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answer ealised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No 1/Inspire staff* - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to udertak		De vers a march ith the Dublic Operations and a march De vers have a more than a second of Answ money, make money, and help hit the targets. This includes your own buildings, and also invest in ered community and commercial schemes. Again, WCC must lead by example. Well all that above that you've written there doesn't really say anything does it? How about you go "entrepreneurial" and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits: creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing envisions. I find it quite anusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answe realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service		Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment ered community and commercial schemes. Again, WCC must lead by example. Well all that above that you've written there doesn't really say anything does it? How about you go 'entrepreneurial' and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits: creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions. If ind it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answe realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing the north an anoth Park and Ride "Interpreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that whave the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way A Well all that above that you've written there doesn't really say anything does it? How about you go "entrepreneurial" and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits: creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions. I find it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answe realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride 'Entrepreneurial' tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. 'Inspire staff'' - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless, as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutin
 How about you go "entrepreneurial" and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits: creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions. I find it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answe realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns to the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The ende of a Council is	ered creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions. Ifind it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answerealised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that		Well all that above that you've written there doesn't really say anything does it?
 I find it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now Answe realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the leasens from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. No Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say' but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you Alf eritep		How about you go "entrepreneurial" and invest in renewable energy? You'll find everyone benefits:
Answer realised you needed them for income. Well done! If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. No the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The role of a Courcil is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Ary entrepreneur		creates jobs, helps residents, saves money and hit targets in reducing emissions.
If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes should be made to Any entrepreneurial activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide		I find it quite amusing that you spent the last few years selling off assets and you've finally now you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you All Sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council	Answe	realised you needed them for income. Well done!
 you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you All Sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council		If you had a better number of housing stock, your public services provision would be way better. If
 Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a An		you could provide renewable energy to residents, you would be providing a good public service. If
 Winchester, you would be providing a good service including get on with a north Park and Ride "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a An		you could manage to keep cars out of the city centre and make provision for clean transport into
 "Entrepreneurial" tends to imply priority for seeking financial profit. The Council Strategy should make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you Any entrepreneurial' approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or No make clear that profit-making can be desirable as a means of enabling and supporting the provision of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence No (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projec
No of public service, but must be subservient to providing the public service. No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the experise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. No Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference
No "Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No Any 'entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything the	No as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-call as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-call
 as you make no mention of a triple bottom line promoting social and environmental improvement alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-call	No	"Inspire staff" - so the staff is currently uninspired ? What's the point of these meaningless
No alongside economic prudence (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called
 No (A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!) • Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? 	NI-	alongside economic prudence
 Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? 	NO
 Ensure that we have the right governance structure in place to enable the Council to act in an entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? 		(A wider point is that you should have been doing all the measures you mention in the first place!)
No entrepreneurial way After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the concertrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for lo
 After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the to concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No 	No	entrepreneurial way the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns the lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. 		After the scandalous waste of public funds & resources over Silver Hill and Station Approach and
Nothe lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAgree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be aNoAny entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		the inadequate response to the Clair Lloyd Jones report, it is clear that WCC does not have the
Nothe lessons from these recent serious mistakes. The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAgree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be aNoAny entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		expertise or experience within the council to undertake entrepreneurial capital projects until it learns
 whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records. The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No Ko concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat? 	No
The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be aNoAny entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		The recent Overview & Scrutiny report to Cabinet re Station Approach was an outrageous
The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of Agree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be aNoAny entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		whitewash of the facts as my letter published in the Hampshire Chronicle records.
NoAgree with some but digital is not always the way - websites are not always the answer to everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it youNoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the NoNoConcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		The only glimmer of hope is that a new Chief Executive and a new Leader will change the culture of
 No everything. You may say 'but we don't mean website' but I bet when it comes down to it you No All sounds very feel good and wooly. No Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a No Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat? 	NL-
NoAll sounds very feel good and wooly.NoAny 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs. The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale 	INO
NoThe role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the Create a property company?NoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?	No
NoAny entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toNoAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the Create a property company?NoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?	No	Any 'entrepreneurial' activity by the Council must be entirely self-financing, including staff costs.
 Profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat? 		The role of a Council is to provide services and governance, not to be distracted by trying to be a profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made toAs outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scaleprojects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notablyNoabsent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks,Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees forinaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for theNoconcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent businessCreate a property company?NoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?	No	Any entrepreneurial approach must be measured and should not result in a culture that is solely
 projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat? 		profit-driven. Public Service is also about quality of life and a direct reference should be made to
Noabsent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for theNoconcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent businessCreate a property company?NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		As outlined in my previous comments, WCC has an abysmal record in delivering large scale
Noabsent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for theNoconcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent businessCreate a property company?NoNoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?		projects which are successful and appropriate for the future. The entrepreneurial skills are notably Friarsgate, River Park, Silver Hill, Chesil Street and now the appalling waste of money in fees for inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for the No concentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent business Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat? 	No	absent from everything they have built, planned or attempted to initiate to date, from The Brooks, inaccurate consultants reports, purchase of land and the so-called 'architectural competition' for theNoconcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent businessCreate a property company?NoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?
Noconcentrate on using assets to provide property and subsidy for local independent businessCreate a property company?NoIs this something you can do at the drop of a hat?
Create a property company? No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat?	No
No Is this something you can do at the drop of a hat?
	No
		Most companies spend years & £1000's becoming established

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment Do not fully agree. Caution needs to be exercised in moving too rapidly to digital services until they No	are more easily accessible and reliable - they are often frustrating and inefficient for users. Flexibility for staff is to be welcomed but not if this means outsourcing (often shown to be inefficient) and requiring staff to fit in with unreasonable demands (zero hours contracts etc.).
	Governance is indeed essential to running effective services - it needs to be well-informed (taking reputable advice) and fully accountable.
	Entrepreneurial is often a euphemism for privatisation. Keep public services publicly owned and pubic assets such as buildings and land in public ownership.
	The best way to incrime staff is to new them preperly treat them well and yoly a their skills
No	The best way to inspire staff is to pay them properly, treat them well and value their skills.
NO	Optimise sounds like another term for cut. WCC subsidies are vital to the existence of many activities which make up the cultural life of the city.
No	'Entrepreneurial' usually means measuring the cost, not the value. Of course the Council should maximise its income and get value for money, but it is ultimately a service provider, not a money-No	For 'entrepeneurial' read exploitative, rip-off, outsourced, overpaid mangers, underpaid workforce. Look at care homes, academy schools and all the other 'entrepeneurial' privaiised services to see
INU	corruption writ large and tax payers money flowing into the pockets of the wronng people.
No	Good services cost money and we need to be taxed to achieve this Having an entrepreneurial outlook requires decisions to be made quickly and without having to pass No	things through steering groups, the media and other bodies. Is the Council, with it's levels of Governance able to take this approach which often relies on moments of carpe diem?
No	Hiking the prices of public services should not be the first option considered when it comes to
No	Honestly, I have a degree, and don't understand this. Who ate the buzz word dictionary.
	How can I agree or disagree when you just provide mission statements, which are completely meaningless unless you provide at least some details of how you are going to achieve them.
No	meaningless unless you provide at least some details of now you are going to achieve them.
NO	Also, one has to question why the council is not already run in this manner? If it has not, then it would appear that the council has been mismanaged for years!
	I agree with your ideas which have yet to be tested as outcomes. How do you propose these outcomes? I suppose 'right governance' means more expensive consultants with their heads in the No	sky and lots of money in their pockets. The working environment should already be in place and the staff who APPLIED to work for you should be aware of the environment and if committed to working for the Council should be willing and able to create their own ambiance. The list reads like jargon and means little in real terms. Public Services is a big umbrella for many of us it means toilets, No	I am afraid the wording of the above just went straight over my head.
No	I am not sure why the council needs to operate in an "entrepreneurial way" or why it needs to create
	I am not sure. Current evidence does not make me feel confident of the council's entrepreneurial
No	capabilities! It would be good to concentrate on one major development at a time and get that right!
	I need to read the details of these headline business-speak phrases before I can make real
No	I believe public services should be publicly funded but increased efficiency sought and flexible
No	working supported.
No	I can't quite see how this one adds up. I do hope "Entrepreneurial" does not mean "privatising" and selling off publically-owned assets?
No	More information needed for me to comment on or approve this I do not agree that public services should be commercialised: this inevitably leads to a reduction of No	service. We are one of the richest places in the world - it is not true that there is no money. If the council budgets have been eroded, then they need to be increased, either from central government or council tax. Cuts to public services hurt the poorest in our society the most: we must not let this No	I do not understand how the above will maximise income flow - it is rather general
No	I don't feel that you aims are clear and measurable.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
No	I have only ticked 'no' as I have no idea what may be involved in the above.
No	I have to say no sadly as the track record of the council is so bad, the thought of the council
UNI	attempting to be entrepreneurial is fairly terrifying
	I would agree that the City Council need a thoroughly good shake up.
No
110	For too long, to my mind, It puts itself across as dictatorial and in spite of so called public consultations finishes going against the wishes of people. What happened to DEMOCRACY?
No	In principle I agree with the idea but I have no confidence that the existing council and its advisors and senior staff will deliver it.
	Invest Council money in renewable energy, including council buildings, but also investing in No	community and commercial schemes.
	Item one - Entrepreneurial, usually means "taking a commercial risk in the hope of making a profit".
	This is an inappropriate activity by a Local Authority and needs more explanation.
No	Item three - Needs explanation.
UNI	Item four - Needs detail
	Item five - This needs further explanation.
	·
No	It's all in the detail for this sort of plan. There is no detail so I can't endorse it.
	It's all very well but some of it reads as seriously delusionary. Winchester town suffers badly from having no dedicated Town Council, meaning that major decisions are far too often in the hands of third-rate backwoodsmen from the likes of Denmead and Wonston!
	Given the shocking degree of centralised control in England in 2017, the Council absolutely HAS to up its game - in both officer capacity/imagination and elected representatives - to fight its own No	corner actively, rather than be led by the lowest common factor. Silver Hill and Station Approach both demonstrated just how far out of its depth Winchester now is. Most of the imaginative architectural practices who could contribute to future development now won't touch the city with a bargepole.
	There's also a poor for the District to up its same in renewable as are which could be use due the
No	There's also a need for the District to up its game in renewable energy - which could be productive Just saying "protect", optimise, enhance etc is political Bullst means nothing.
UNI	Local government has as a key responsibility the duty to serve the whole local community, and to provide quality services for all sections of the community whilst owning a responsibility to financial prudence, the council should not be run as an entrepreneurial venture. This would be to stress the commercial above the social duties of the council. Whilst it is necessary to become financially No	robust, money-making should not become the overriding mantra of the city council; quality of environment, quality of life are more important. Thus the apparent willingness by council to sacrifice affordable housing (against council policy) for financial gain, as exemplified by the Henderson's proposals for Silver Hill. Slavish adherence to a money-first policy of central government of late is misplaced and has caused real damage to the disadvantaged communities. This cannot be Management speak bollocks
No	How much public funds will be put at risk
	What subsidies does Council fund?
	Municipally owned assets should not be sold to fund service provision, this is an entirely
No	unsustainable basis on which to run a council (or any other organisation). Over time this will erode the crucial role that the council plays in improving wellbeing in the district.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? Do you have any other comment
	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
N I -	Need to fully explore the potential for the Council to generate income through energy services, No	including installation of renewable energy. Also need to campaign more effectively for changes to local government finance and fight for more devolution of powers.
No	Not at the expense of making Winchester different by focusing on its history and heritage as its primary source of income through tourism, and all the related opportunities servicing this.
No	Once again the aim should be to get what is in place working properly before trying to expand your presence in the daily life of the City.
No	only agree if the proposed property company works in concert with the Silver Hill and Station Overall I agree but please -
	- Don't waste money on consultants such as those from Capita and KPMG who are proven to be NI -	just ripping off local authorities.
No
	- When investing in "collaborative and flexible working environments" try to minimise spend on frivolities such as bean bags, indoor swings and other useless junk which seemed like a good idea at the time. Office fit out consultants normally have a field day here and generally need hauling in,
No	Provide your outlying villages andd parished with the internet we will prvide the entrepeners its not your job what we need is employment or the masses
. NI	Public services need to be effective as well as efficient. An entrepreneurial approach seems a big
No	departure from the council's current approach, so I am not convinced that it would be the best way of achieving effective and efficient public services. It would require the right skillsets and culture, as Some of them. It would make much better sense if, in this questionnaire each separate item above could be agreed with or not. Lumping them altogether is not sensible.
No	What is meant by 'entrepreneurial'? an often used word that can mean anything. It is essential the
-	Council define what they mean.
	There is nothing in the Public Services plan list that mentions the public and how the services might be provided to suit them and how they might benefit!
No	Sorry I'm not actually too sure what all that means so am unable to agree or disagree really. I guess the digital infrastructure makes sense for more self service etc but I'm unsure of your current The aim is over-ambitious and ignores the steady undermining of local democracy through the Nia	control/ withdrawal of central government funds. Very good piece on this in the LRB in December
No	2016, tracing the decline over 120 years. I would prefer to see the Council mount a spirited challenge to this process, together with other councils, AS WELL AS updating technology in providing services for those who are able to use it. However services also need to be available to No	The approach should focus in public provision rather than sinking money into the bottomless pit of outsourcing with the attendant secrecy, separation of claims vs outcomes and loss of control.
	The Council certainly should not be in the business of doing business. It has never shown any competence to do so and in any case it should confine itself to providing the services that it is expected to provide. It should raise the money through council taxation or levy on the services it Na
No	provides. Public car parking is a case in point. The Council should be doing much more about recovering a proper return on the resources it holds. Since it is responsible for maintaining the road system and the air quality in Winchester it also has a perfect right to levy the activities that rely on that road system and that threaten air quality. A workplace parking levy (such as is raised in The council need to not only inspire the staff, they also need to inspire the community. Creating an Na	entrepreneurial approach is not enough in itself if it neglects the real needs of its citizens and that No	moral of the entire community. The council need should be encouraging more creative events that create greater social bridging connections across the whole community, making it easier for people from all economic backgrounds in the community to help themselves and enjoy their lives together The Council should invest in renewable energy. This provides a good financial return and a No	consistent inflation index source of income. It also reduces the Council's costs.

	Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other comment
	The first bullet point is essential but there is no substance that semomstrates that he council understands how to do this, has the expertise and knowledge how to do this or has any track record of doing so
No
	Social enterprise and third sector need to be prominent to promote shared values and to ensure that profits made from such endeavours are reinvested into the services and not taken out as profit.
	The history of Councils buying property for investment purposes is not good. Providing Housing is No	rather different since in many cases the Council or DHHS also pay the rent.
	The long delayed Silver Hill development shows how difficult Council involvement can be,
No	The points are waffly and hard to understand.
	The word "entrepreneurial" is normally associated with small new enterprises taking high risks with high tolerance of failure. Does that sound appropriate for delivery of public services? The aims and No	activities listed aren't "entrepreneurial" at all; they would deliver a conventional mix of monetising services/assets and cutting costs. Perhaps "commercial" or "innovative" is better.
	There is far too much jargon here (and I am a corporate lawyer). If you are going to engage In Nic
No	buying and selling property then be clear about what you are talking about. There needs to be a balance to ensure you are meeting long term local needs e.g. Selling or building on sports fields There is no mention of investment in anything other than the usual, though of course the phrasing above may include some new thinking.
No	I would be glad if there were some mention of renewable energy schemes to benefit schools and other communities. Again, these have been successful in other parts of the country, particularly when local people are encouraged and empowered by their councils.
No	This approach has been disastrous for winchester . Note the brooks and friarsgatr This is an agenda to maximise income which means local costs are high. An entrepreneur would No	look to increase volume at a reduced cost to the user. Putting up rates, parking fees, service charges etc only serves to move income generators out. Illogical No	This is management jargon. How can you write this out with a straight face?
	This sounds like a round about way of saying the council will start charging for services that are No	currently funded through council tax payments.
No	Vague corporate speak
No	Very vague aims.
No	we need more info Winchester City Council has a poor track record of successful stakeholder dialogue. This switches people off from supporting the council. The current system, of council meetings and online surveys such as this one miss most residents and their needs and interests. It is these residents who need No	to be reached, to inspire support for socially responsible projects and enterprises.
	The City Council should invest Council money in renewable energy, which would be entrepreneurial, save money, make money, and help hit income targets. This includes WCCs own buildings, and also investing in community and commercial schemes.
	Winchesters primary role should be deliver services for its citizens and not operate as an
No	entrepreneurial organisation, which is pandering to two a TV show mentality.
	With all that has gone before with Silver Hill and the leisure centre I do not feel confident that things
No	will go forward successfully with an 'entrepreneurial' approach.
	Yes you will have to find new income streams but again your statements are not 'Outcomes'
	The phrases are all beautiful desires but not firm Outcomes
No
	Sorry to repeat the phrase but these are vague terms and can be interpreted in any way the Council or its officers wish.
	You have said WHAT you want to achieve but not HOW. This is not credible in the current climate with Government funding being cut to zero in a few years time.

Do you agree with the Public Services outcome? - Do you have any other com You do not say what you think the right governance structure is or why. Witho impossible to know whether this is empty-headed rhetoric, exploiting a few ear ut more detail it is impossible to know whether this is empty-headed rhetoric, exploiting a few ea sy buzz-words. You have not said anything comprehensible about the quality of the services you o	offer.
No Entrepreneurial steps should include extensive investment in renewable energy	gy and energy saving technologies, and encouragement of such businesses. Increasingly these will and create prosperity, The council must impose a ban on investing its money, scheme's money in energy-wasting, carbon-producing activity, especially oil a	- You have left out the most obvious matter. This area, with its knowledgeable of No know-how is crying out to be a leader in developing sustainable technology ar
We need to produce 15% of our own energy by 2020. This could easily be do You have worded this so that one cant really refute it. The question is how wi
No capable and insightful leadership and with the number of debacles you have s	- haven't achieved that . Suggest you get the basics right first.	Janoroa you oloany You missed theboat. Where are the energy initiatives that serve Eastleigh so	well? Too late now
You need to make a huge change
No If you are to be entrepreneurial you need leadership, vision, ability to take but	managa ricke oto
	-
And communication. But most of all you need to mitivate and entrain the publ That means listening, understanding, supporting. reating a vibrant dstrict. Re	,
You will only be self-sufficient if planned outcomes are restricted to equal inco build 200 council houses each year at a cost of £200,000 each that would cos	- No year and then income would not equal expenditure. I do realise that if you in re build houses if you were allowed and so it would be the debt that would have t
However, the point is made it is only by cutting expectations that the council c	an attord to carry out